

Kilt Measurement Guide

Measuring for a Gents Kilt (and Older Boys)

Taking Your Measurements: For men it is important to have the correct "starting point". this is exactly 2 inches above the hip bone.

Tip
Start 2 inches above the hip bone when measuring no.1 - the waist.

WAIST (1)

From this starting point measure around the stomach, this is the waist measurement. Note, this waist measurement is not the same as a trouser waist measurement, as the kilt is worn higher the waist measurement is usually greater than the trouser measurement.

SEAT (2)

Take the widest area across the bottom, and measure around, do not put the tape measure tight, this should be a fairly loose measurement.

LENGTH (3)

Whilst kneeling on the floor and keeping your back upright. That is, not looking forward and down whilst taking the measurement, measure from the starting point (2 inches above hip) to the floor. There is a temptation to lean forward to view the measurement but this causes an inaccurate length measurement. The Kilt length should be to the centre of the knee.

WAIST (1)

normal waist

MID-HIP (2)

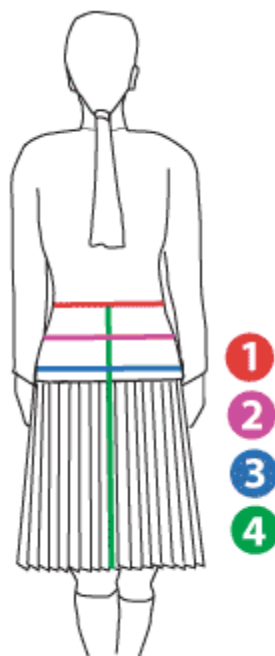

between the waist and seat

SEAT (3)

measure around, do not put the tape measure tight, this should be a fairly loose measurement.

LENGTH (4)

your back upright. That is, taking the measurement, there is a temptation to lean forward to view the measurement but this causes an inaccurate

Measuring for a Ladies Kilt

This is the starting point. Take your measurement, around the thinnest part.

This measurement should be halfway (bottom).

Take the widest area across the bottom, and put the tape measure tight, this should be a

Whilst kneeling on the floor and keeping not looking forward and down whilst measure from the starting point to the floor. lean forward to view the measurement but length measurement.

Measuring for a Young Child's Kilt

WAIST (1)

This is the starting point. Take a normal waist measurement, around the point of the belly button.

LENGTH (2)

From the waist point measure to the centre of the knee.

